

Contributors

Thomas C. Brutting, AIA, is principal of HKIT Architects in Oakland. He is chair of the board of directors of the St. Anthony Foundation and serves on the Housing Committee of AIA San Francisco, where he is also founder and chair of the Design for Aging Committee. He may be reached at TBrutting@HKIT.com.

Kenneth Caldwell is a writer and communications consultant based in San Francisco. He may be reached at Kenneth@KennethCaldwell.com.

Tim Culvahouse, FAIA, is editor of arcCA and principal of Culvahouse Consulting in Berkeley. He may be reached at tim@culvahouse.net.

Dorit Fromm, AIA, writes and researches on design, community and aging. Her writings have appeared in local, national and international publications, and she is the author of Cohousing, Central Living and Other New Forms of Housing. She may be reached at FrommDorit@gmail.com.

Principal Andrew Lian leads workplace sector projects at Woods Bagot Perth Studio and has a strong interest in research of future workplace trends. He has been recipient to both academic and professional awards. Andrew is a registered architect with over 18 years project experience across Australia and South-East Asia. He may be reached at andrew.lian@woodsbagot.com.au.

Carolyn Karnovsky is the Marketing Coordinator for Woods Bagot Perth Studio. In 2005, she received her BA in Product and Furniture Design and has worked both as a research assistant and sessional lecturer for Curtin University's Faculty of Interior Architecture. She may be reached at carolyn.karnovsky@woodsbagot.com.au

Michael F. Malinowski, AIA, is AIACC VP of Communications and Public Affairs, 2008 President of the AIACV, 2007 Chair of Sacramento's Development Oversight Commission, and principal of thirty-year-old Applied Architecture Inc in Sacramento (www.appliedarchitecture.net). His work on Sacramento's Globe Mills, formerly blighted and now a thriving mix of affordable senior housing and market rate lofts, was recently recognized with a 2009 AIACV Honor Award, the "2008 Award for Redevelopment Excellence" and the "2009 Award for Excellence in Residential Redevelopment." He may be reached at mfm@appliedarts.net.

David Meckel, FAIA, is Director of Research & Planning for the California College of the Arts (CCA) in San Francisco. He may be reached at dmeckel@cca.edu.

Avery Taylor Moore, AIA, LEED AP, is a principal with Field Paoli in San Francisco. She is currently directing work for campus buildings, public libraries and sustainable workplaces.

Andrew E. Scharlach is Associate Dean and Professor of Social Welfare at the University of California at Berkeley, where he holds the Eugene and Rose Kleiner Chair in Aging and directs the Gerontology specialization in the School of Social Welfare. He also serves as Director of the Center for the Advanced Study of Aging Services, which conducts research designed to inform development of innovative and effective services for older adults. In addition, Professor Scharlach serves as a gubernatorial appointee on the California Commission on Aging. He may be reached at scharlach@berkeley.edu.

Susanne Stadler is an architect with creative roots in Salzburg, Austria, where she was born and raised. Her office, Stadler Architecture, is based in Oakland. One of her long-term interests is an integrated approach to design for aging. In her research and design, she continues to explore different models of aging both in the US and Europe.

Jimmy Stamp is a freelance writer and designer currently enrolled in the M.E.D. program at the Yale School of Architecture. His work has appeared in numerous magazines and websites and he has been publishing the architecture blog Life Without Buildings [lifewithoutbuildings.net] since 2004. Jimmy may be reached at jimmy@lifewithoutbuildings.net.

Lauren Zmood is a member of the Workplace Consulting team at Woods Bagot. She recently completed her Masters in Architecture with first class honors. During her studies and work, Lauren's interest in research and theory led her design projects to explore current and future social, contextual and sustainable elements. She may be reached at lauren.zmood@woodsbagot.com.au